1. INTRODUCTION

Electoral democracy requires constant improvement and updating to meet the demands of a modern society, of citizens demanding their rights and of strong political parties intensely disputing access to political power.

Against this backdrop, the organization of elections has gradually become an object of specialized knowledge and practice. Today, those of us involved in the organization of elections are not only faced with a very widespread and diversified practice, but also a very complex one in its conduct in order to meet universally recognized international standards for free, clean, fair, equitable and reliable elections.

The classic standards of electoral democracy have not changed, what has changed are the parameters that are set to satisfy those attributes. Currently, the conditions in which electoral competitions are developed demand a higher quality performance from the electoral authority in order to comply with those standards. A training effort is required for electoral officials, in accordance with the new context of political demands.

The changes registered in the constant evolution of the electoral agenda demand new aptitudes (knowledge, skills and abilities) and new attitudes (values and behaviors) from those responsible for organizing elections in the world.

It is necessary to periodically review and adjust issues such as: the integration and updating of electoral registries; voting and counting mechanisms; voter information campaigns; special attention to unprotected groups; policies for the acquisition or production and distribution of electoral documentation and materials; and mechanisms to preserve the secrecy of the vote, among others.

Therefore, the training, specialization and updating of the human resources that make up the electoral bodies have become a strategic imperative. Electoral training is a fundamental part of the electoral bodies for several reasons:

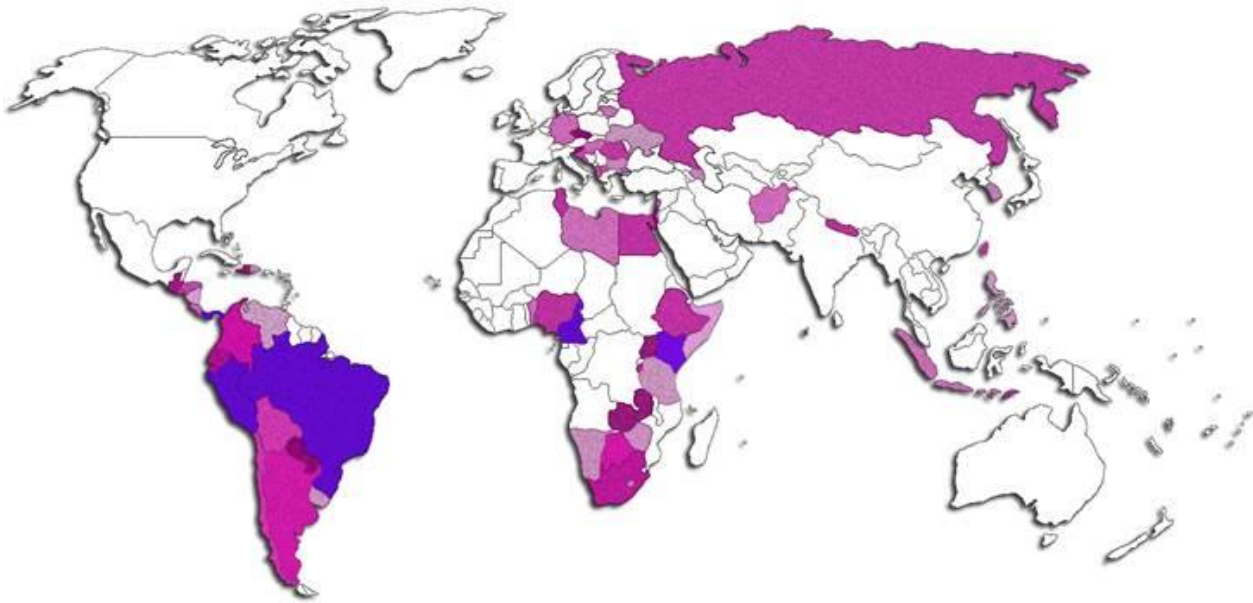

- Promotes the specialization of knowledge on functions and topics of interest to them.
- Generates an institutional memory that makes procedures more efficient.
- Promotes research to deepen aspects of institutional interest or fosters knowledge about best practices.

International cooperation in the area of capacity building

Since 2004, the federal electoral authorities of Mexico, the National Electoral Institute (INE) (formerly the Federal Electoral Institute, IFE) and the Electoral Tribunal of the Judiciary of the Federation (TEPJF), together with the office in this country of the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) have been carrying out a series of activities aimed at the authorities of electoral bodies in other countries, through workshops in which comparative experiences on specific topics of electoral administration and dispute resolution in the field are presented.

It is from May 2008 that they are inserted under a new horizontal international cooperation scheme called International Program for Electoral Training and Research (PICIE), which would carry out pilot projects and, thanks to the results obtained, in September 2010, the Electoral Council approves the creation of the International Center for Electoral Training and Research (CICIE) which, until December 2021 has developed the following programs for the exchange of knowledge and experiences:

- 23 International Specialized Courses, of which 3 have been exclusively for INE officials and 4 of them in virtual mode.
- 8 Inter-American Electoral Seminars in partnership with the OAS.
- 33 International Internships
- 57 International Workshops

Among the various impacts caused by the SARS COV 2 pandemic, CICIE's face-to-face programs had been suspended. In this sense and adapting to the current requirements, the international cooperation programs have migrated to INE's technological infrastructure for online knowledge management. Thus, CICIE in 2020 and 2021 has developed four virtual internships on various topics such as: public financing and oversight of political actors' money; gender equality and the Protocol for transgender people. In addition, two international specialization courses were developed on the organization of elections in the context of health emergencies with electoral officials from Latin America and Africa and two courses on mechanisms of inclusion and direct democracy that promote greater citizen participation.

2. INE - MINISTRY OF HOME AFFAIRS COLLABORATION

2.1 Current initiative

In September 2021, the Ministry of Home Affairs of Suriname asked the National Electoral Institute of Mexico for a horizontal cooperation program, in the virtual modality implemented by CICIE, in which the topics of electoral registration and training, as well as the political party regime and auditing will be addressed. It was agreed that the ideal date to carry it out would be the first four months of the year 2022.

On the part of the Ministry of Home Affairs of Suriname, the General Secretariat for Elections will participate, as well as the Bureau for Civil Registry. Also, given the relevance and specificity of the topics, the Ministry opened the invitation to representatives of the country's political parties.

It was also agreed to invite other electoral bodies of the Americas with experience in these topics, with the objective of learning about different models and complementing the development of the workshop with their experiences.

2.2 INE – Ministry of Home Affairs

Cooperation between the electoral bodies of Mexico and Suriname has been carried out within the framework of multilateral programs. The first of these took place in 2008 in the I Inter-American Electoral Day, which was replicated from 2009 to 2014 in the II, III, IV, V, VI and VII Inter-American Electoral Day.

They addressed various topics such as the improvement of electoral registries, the relationship between the electoral authority and the media, georeferencing for electoral purposes, voting abroad, transparency mechanisms, among many others.

3. OBJECTIVE AND TERMS OF REFERENCE

The purpose of this Workshop is for the participants to:

- Exchange information on the electoral systems they have; as well as examine and discuss the attributions and functions of both electoral bodies.
- Explain and compare the ways in which electoral registration is carried out in the participating countries. Mechanisms and challenges.
- Detail the manner in which they conduct the electoral training of the officials at the polling stations.
- Become familiar with the political party system: financing and oversight.

The Virtual Workshop will take place from April 25 to 28, 2022, in an online modality, supporting its activities with videoconferencing platforms (Zoom), e-learning (Blackboard) and web tools (forms, file sharing, messaging) that facilitate the participation and dissemination of materials and experiences among participants. In response to the topics of interest requested by the electoral authorities of the Ministry of Home Affairs, the Workshop will be developed as follows: daily sessions lasting three hours (from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., Mexico City time; from 12:00 to 3:00 p.m., Suriname time) in which INE experts, Surinamese participants and experts from the invited countries will interact in real time, through the Zoom platform. After each presentation there will be a space for discussion and exchange of questions and answers.

4. PARTICIPATING INSTITUTIONS

	The National Electoral Institute (INE) is the autonomous public agency in charge of organizing federal elections, i.e., the election of the President of the Republic, Deputies and Senators that make up the Congress of the Union, as well as organizing, in coordination with the electoral agencies of the states, local elections in the states of the Republic and Mexico City.
	The Ministry of Home Affairs, as a central service provider within the Surinamese government and society, is jointly responsible for the effective and efficient functioning of the public sector. Among its responsibilities are ensuring quality civil administration; organizing plebiscites and elections, ensuring transparency of processes and procedures; further developing, implementing and disseminating the national gender policy, among others.
 Algemeen Secretariaat Verkiezingen	The General Secretariat for Elections ensures that the preparation and organization of elections is carried out on the basis of transparent processes and procedures, using updated and reliable citizen information. The active participation of society is encouraged for the benefit of the democratic process.
	Elections Canada is an independent, non-partisan agency of Parliament. Its primary task is to be prepared at all times to administer an electoral event and referendums. The mission is ensure that Canadians can exercise their democratic rights to vote and be a candidate.
	The Electoral Tribunal of Panama is an entity committed to provide quality services and confidentiality in the registration of vital facts, legal acts and identification of persons, guaranteeing the defense of democratic and ethical principles, subordinated to compliance with the Constitution and the Law.

The Supreme Electoral Tribunal of Costa Rica (TSE) is the highest Costa Rican electoral body; it was one of the main institutional innovations of the Political Constitution of 1949, since the TSE acquired the status of the fourth power of the State, equaling the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Powers. Currently, this organism performs four functions: electoral administration (it includes the organization, direction and control of all acts related to suffrage), civil registry (this also includes the elaboration of the electoral roll and the issuance of the identity card), jurisdictional and training in democracy.

There is also a Vice President elected under the same conditions as the Chief Executive. The current President is Luis Abinader and the Vice President is Raquel Peña, both elected in 2020.

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH It is bicameral. It is composed of the Senate, with 32 members (1 for each province and one more for the National District), and the Chamber of Deputies, made up of 190 deputies (a variable number in proportion to the population). The members of both chambers are elected by direct vote and under a proportional representation system, or by simple majority in the case of senators. The constitutional term of both officials is for 4 years.

ELECTORAL MANAGEMENT BODIES The Central Electoral Board is an autonomous body and is the highest authority in matters of administration and organization of the electoral processes.

The Superior Electoral Tribunal is an autonomous constitutional body and the highest authority in electoral litigation; his decisions are not subject to any appeal.

<sup>2</sup> 178 deputies elected by territorial constituency in proportion to population density; 5 deputies elected at the national level by accumulation of votes, preferably from parties or alliances that have not won seats; and 7 deputies elected representing the Dominican community abroad.

SURINAME
PARAMARIBO

OFFICIAL NAME

Republic of Suriname

STATE

Unitary

ADMINISTRATIVE DIVISION

The country is divided into 10 administrative districts: Brokopondo, Commewijne, Coronie, Marowijne, Nickerie, Para, Paramaribo, Saramacca, Sipaliwini and Wanica.

POPULATION

595,000 (2021). The largest ethnic group are the East Indians which form about 27.4% of the population. However, the largest group of people are the Afro-Surinamese, at around 37.4%. They are usually divided into two cultural/ethnic groups: the Creoles (15.7%) and the Maroons (21.7%). Javanese make up 14% of the population.

GOVERNMENT

Unitary assembly-independent republic

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

The president and vice-president are elected for a five-year term (with the possibility of immediate re-election) by a two-thirds majority of the National Assembly.

The current president is Chandrikapersad Santokhi, in office since 2020.

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

It is a unicameral system. The National Assembly is composed of 51 members elected for a 5-year term by open list proportional representation. The Assembly is also in charge of electing the President of the Republic, for which a qualified majority of 2/3 of the members is required. If this majority is not achieved, the People's Assembly, which is an institution composed of 340 members, the members of the National Assembly and various regional representatives, is called upon to elect the President of the Republic.

ELECTORAL MANAGEMENT BODIES

The Independent Electoral Council, collaborates with the Ministry of Home Affairs regarding the elections, oversees the general elections and declares the election results legally binding for the country.
